FOUR QUESTIONS TO ASK BEFORE YOU MAKE AN OFFER

Reading Script

[HOOK]

Most buyers decide whether to make an offer based on the price and the photos.

The ones who get into trouble later are usually the ones who didn't ask a handful of basic questions first.

In this video I'm going to give you four questions to ask before you offer on any property — residential or commercial.

(pause)

I'm Jake, founder of Calibre Acquire.

I've worked in property for fourteen years, and transacted on over £80 million of commercial property investments in the past year alone.

I help investors get out of underperforming property assets and into ones that work harder for them.

[GRAPHIC: "Four Questions to Ask Before You Offer"]

[QUESTION 1 — TENANT STRENGTH]

Who's paying the rent, and how secure is it?

(pause)

If the property is tenanted, you're not just buying a building — you're buying the tenant's ability to keep paying.

Ask how long they've been in occupation, whether they've ever missed a payment, and how long is left on the lease.

The asking price can often look the same and reflect the same yield, but it can cause issues further down the line.

[GRAPHIC: "Question 1 — Who's paying the rent, and how secure is it?"]

[CALCULATOR CTA]

If you're considering a property and want to stress test it within a few minutes,

I built calculators for mixed-use, HMO, and single residential deals, so you can put in the real numbers and see what a deal actually returns — not just what it looks like on the surface.

Completely free.

Comment the word "send" below, or use the link below to get access.

[GRAPHIC: "Free Deal Calculators — Mixed-Use / HMO / Single Residential" + URL: calibreacquire.co.uk/investment-calculators]

[QUESTION 2 — TRUE COST]

What does this actually cost beyond the purchase price?

(pause)

Service charge, ground rent, repairs, planning constraints — these don't show up in the headline figure, but they affect your return every year you hold the property.

Ask for the last three years of service charge accounts if there's one in place.

Ask whether any major works are planned or already agreed.

A property that looks cheaper on paper can end up costing more once these are factored in.

[GRAPHIC: "Question 2 — What does this actually cost beyond the purchase price?"]

[QUESTION 3 — VENDOR MOTIVATION]

Why is the vendor actually selling?

(pause)

This shapes how the negotiation goes and what you might uncover.

A vendor selling because of probate, retirement, or a change in circumstances behaves differently to one selling because the property has become a problem.

It's not always something you'll get a straight answer to, but it's worth asking your agent or solicitor what they know.

The reason behind a sale often explains things the listing itself won't.

[GRAPHIC: "Question 3 — Why is the vendor actually selling?"]

[QUESTION 4 — EXIT STRATEGY]

Who would buy this from me later?

(pause)

Before you buy, it's worth knowing what your future buyer looks like.

A property with broad appeal — good location, flexible use, no unusual lease structure — is easier to sell on.

A highly specific asset can be harder to move, even at a fair price.

This doesn't mean you need to plan an exit on day one.

But if you can't picture who'd want this property in five or ten years, that's worth considering before you offer.

[GRAPHIC: "Question 4 — Who would buy this from me later?"]

[CLOSING]

None of these questions guarantee a good outcome on their own.

But asking them before you offer, rather than after you've exchanged, puts you in a much stronger position.

[GRAPHIC: "Ask before you offer, not after you exchange"]

[CTA]

If you'd like access to properties before they reach the open market, you can apply using the link below.

I go through every application personally, and if it's a good fit and we've got positions available, I'll be in touch.

[GRAPHIC: End card — Calibre Acquire logo + calibreacquire.co.uk]

[Lower third: www.calibreacquire.co.uk/register]